Atlanta City Councilmembers Mary Norwood and Felicia Moore launch municipal government financial transparency survey

City residents encouraged to give feedback through online survey

ATLANTA – Cities across the country—large and small—are posting all of their expenditures on the Internet, where they are accessible to the public for review.

Several members of the Atlanta City Council have proposed legislation to implement a similar system in Atlanta. This quick survey is intended to find out the support for this type of financial transparency in Atlanta. For more information on financial transparency in city government click HERE or visit:
