Councilman Michael Julian Bond Spends King Holiday Weekend with Local Children

ATLANTA – Atlanta City Councilmember Michael Julian Bond, Post 1 At-Large, brought greetings and shared first-hand knowledge about the Martin Luther King, Jr. holiday and the significance of that day.

Councilman Bond spoke to approximately 100 fifth to eighth graders and their basketball coaches on January 17. Bond was joined by Atlanta Hawks Players Justin Holiday and Mike Muscala. The group was from parks and recreation basketball leagues from both the City of Atlanta and Fulton County.

“It’s always wonderful speaking with our youth about the civil rights movement,” said Bond. “I’m always touched by the questions young people have. It was an honor to spend quality time with the children and to tour The Center for Civil and Human Rights with them.”
